A Striking Decoration.

One of the most striking bits of decoration seen this fall is a magnificent cornstalk in full feather and some tall grasses of the field. They are massed together in one corner of a clever woman's own room and are tied with one long ribbon-like streamer of the corn. The colors are spiendid and the whole room is made to glow with warmth and deep rich tones, yet the price of the whole was a pleasant stroll on a fine September day, and an outing which laid up a store of strength as well as a bit of decoration which will retain its beauty for weeks if not for months.
